

invaluable

Top philosophy scholars comprise the SEP's volunteer authors and subject editors working together to ensure that entries remain current and authoritative.

informative

Entries cover many important issues in contemporary philosophy for students, professionals, and the public. SEP entries are widely used in individual research and in philosophy courses.

in-depth

Hundreds of entries averaging over 10,000 words – greater than any other philosophy reference work available anywhere.

in demand

With as many as 750,000 entry retrievals per week worldwide, the SEP is philosophy's premiere portal to the World Wide Web. SEP entries are read not only by philosophers and students, but also by others in diverse disciplines including mathematics, law, science, and history.

Encyclopedia of Philosophy

The Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy (SEP) is at the vanguard of the Internet age through its collective effort to create and maintain an authoritative reference work of philosophy online. The SEP has revolutionized traditional text-based encyclopedias; it avoids the need for printing new editions by publishing a rigorously peer-reviewed, dynamic encyclopedia on the web. Authors can update entries freely while expert reviewers ensure improved quality. A dynamic encyclopedia evolves and quickly adapts to reflect advances in research. The SEP by nature is not – and will never be – finished because the process of updating a dynamic encyclopedia does not end. This ability to adapt, change, and respond quickly to new ideas is absolutely essential for any scholarly reference work in the twenty-first century.

Working Together

Philosophers, librarians and interested individuals have joined forces to ensure that the SEP remains free and widely accessible to all. Specifically, the SEP must raise $4.12 million over the next three years to establish a permanent operating fund to remain viable and to preserve open access.

“By offering authoritative, in-depth entries on the most important issues in contemporary philosophy, the SEP has become an invaluable learning and research tool for students and scholars alike.”

–John Perry, Henry Waldgrave Stuart Prof. of Philosophy, Stanford University

Preserving Open Access

We need help from people like you to help meet our private donation goals and keep the SEP free and publicly available. In return, you get permanent guaranteed access to top scholarship that keeps the world current on the latest ideas in philosophy. Your support is critical to the ultimate success of the SEP. Every amount helps. We greatly appreciate your generosity, and encourage you to give any amount that feels comfortable for you. If successful in this three-year campaign, we will be able to keep the SEP free without the need to charge users on an annual or per use basis.
